INTRODUCTION

The Ohio Historical Society's Library in Columbus has a large collection of city and county directories. Both types of directories are arranged alphabetically then chronologically in the main reading room. The smaller number of county directories immediately precedes the city directories.

There is no concise definition for a "county directory" that would pertain to all volumes. Some county directories are strictly rural and do not list residents of small towns or cities while others may include both areas. Some county directories include more than one county. The 1878/79 Champaign County Directory, for example, also includes the counties of Logan, Miami, and Shelby plus numerous cities.

Generally, the county directories for less populated counties include the entire county (rural & towns). The county directories for more populous counties are usually more specialized. Many county directories present listings by townships with towns and cities presented separately. Many city directories for county seats include the entire county and could really be classed as county directories.

City directories became popular after 1850, but some were published prior to that date: Cinncinnati - 1831, 1842, & 1849/50; Cleveland - 1837/39, 1846/47, & 1848/49; and Columbus - 1843/44, 1845/46, & 1848.

Most of the entries in this list are the result of spinereading. Many small towns are included in directories for nearby larger towns/cities, but may not be necessarily identified as such. The researcher should always consult the card catalog for his place of interest to insure that nothing is overlooked.

The Society also has a collection of business directories which are shelved in the closed stacks. These are not included in this list but may be identified by using the card catalog. Business directories are less helpful to most researchers because they generally list only merchants and professionals.

The researcher is encouraged to always browse through an entire directory. Their contents and manner of organization are so diverse that one never knows what to expect. Many directories contain post office lists for Ohio and the nation. Lists of taxpayers, usually county-wide, sometimes appear. The 1842 Cincinnati Directory has a special section at the end for "colored" persons. The 1876/77 Mount Vernon Directory includes biographical sketches of "aged & venerable citizens." The 1881/82 Portsmouth Directory has a list of all the states of the United States showing their populations as of the 1790 through 1880 censuses; also populations of some major cities in America as of 1870 & 1880.

Perhaps a word should be said about the mechanics of this list. The cut-off date was 1983. A directory listed as "1905/06" is actually only one volume - the publishers intended to cover part or all of both years. (Some of the county directories spanned as many as five years.) The use of the word "ditto" means: exactly the same as the immediately preceding comment.

I would like to acknowledge Mr. Ralph Waite of the library/archives staff for his helpful guidance and assistance in this undertaking. It is always a pleasure to work with Ralph. Any corrections or additions should be brought to the author's attention.
